But the story unraveled in the course of the morning by the subsequent interrogations gave no grounds for relief. Apparently the leader of the west gate group, a Private Davis, had been told by Padawski that the west gate would be the rallying point for a rush to the motor pool. Either Davis had been set up to draw the hunt away deliberately or Padawski had changed his plans at the last minute. Nobody else had shown up at the west gate, and Davis's group had been left stranded. But only a few more were in the transporter when it landed, and Padawski was not among them. They claimed that after they had seized the aircraft, Padawski had radioed them to get away while they could because he was pinned down with the main party by the Omar Bradley Block. But Sirocco had had the Omar Bradley Block well covered and secured throughout, and nobody had been near it. And somewhere in the middle of it all, Padawski and twenty-three others, all heavily armed, had melted away. Soldiers were already coming round the corner and bearing down on them fast, two sergeants in the lead, when the guards turned back again. The SD's reached instinctively for their sidearms, but their holsters were empty. For three vital seconds they were too confused to go for the alarm button on the wall-panel behind them. Three seconds were all Hanlon and Colman needed to cover the remaining distance. . . . fence that separated this trailer space from the one to the west. Sun glare veiled the kid's features. "The EAP is committed to a dogma of conquest," he said. "They understand no language apart from force. You cannot hope to deal with them by any other means." . . . his in Congress, and that they might see more long-term profit in betraying her than in serving her honestly. . . . cross the median strip and attempt to hitchhike east, either, because the traffic whizzing past in that. . . . one of the scattered clumps of sagebrush that stipple the landscape. He puts one hand on the back of the. . . . tip?". . . . down an aisle of parked cars and other civilian vehicles, he catches up with Old Yeller and comes upon a. . . . your murderous stepfather, we're to believe you had a brother who was abducted by aliens. . . . She cracked her hip against the chunky post at the corner of the footboard, fell against the bed, but at. . . . every time." Finally he smiled. . . . with the thingy. . . . "Lock at condition orange and ready to close." . . . back toward the Windchaser, not with so many altercations likely to be rejoined if they do. They can't. "Only one of you was shot in the head," Leilani said, "but you've both got scrambled wiring for the most. . . . fragrance of decay. . . . He stopped for a moment to stare out through the window while he collected his thoughts. Then he wheeled back to look first at Jean and then at Bernard, who was listening from the sofa below the wall screen. "Anyway I know a lot of people think the way Jean does, but we could still get anti-Chironian reactions from many elements. That's what worries me. But if we set up a liberal civil administration here now, while the opportunity presents itself, I think there's a good chance that Wellesley might accept it as a fait accompli, even if he does declare an emergency, and go along with us when he recognizes the inevitable- which I suspect he might be beginning to do already. That would give everybody a new tomorrow to wake up to, and they'd soon forget this whole business. But there isn't much time. That's why I skipped the meeting. Now you two can help, pretty much in the ways we've discussed. What I'd like you to do first is-" The call tone from Lechat's compad interrupted. He looked down instinctively at the breast pocket of his jacket. "Excuse me for a moment." "I'm not sure," Kalens replied distantly. Trying to elucidate Stern's motives is akin to peeling an onion. But when you think it through, if there's no resistance, we win automatically, and if there is, then the Chironians will be forced to make the first moves, which gives us both a free hand to respond and a clear-cut justification that will satisfy our own people . . . which' is doubly important with the elections coming up. So really you have to agree, John, the scheme does have considerable merit." . . . Although Terranova appeared solid and contiguous at first glance, it was almost bisected by a south-pointing inland sea called' the Medichironian, which opened to the ocean via a narrow strait at its northern end. A high mountain chain to the east of the Medichironian completed the division of Terranova into what had been designated two discrete continents--Oriena to the east, and Occidena to the west. "Er. . . Shirley and Ci," Driscoll said. "And that's General Wellington." . . . groaned with pleasure while eating them. "Hey, don't get too excited about this," Colman cautioned. "I only said I'd be interested in seeing it. The Army might have different ideas about me getting involved. Don't bet your life savings on it." "That has to give us the rest of the ship and the surface," Swyle said. "If the Army gets its act together and grabs Stern before he gets a chance to head this way, then we might not have to go in there at all." Chang threw his cards down and leveled two black fingers across the table. "A Smith and Wesson beats five aces." He grinned and stood up. "Everybody set for another drink?" A chorus of assent rose around the table, and Chang moved away to the bar on the far side of the room. . . . smile, either, like you might expect, but a half-sad smile, as if it was going to be too easy and they. . . . She wore a silk or nainsook full-length slip with elaborate embroidery and ribbon lace on the wide. "Ah, why don't we wrap it up and have the next one up in Rockefeller's," Hanlon suggested. "That was where Sirocco said he was going." "With a friend in Baltimore," she told hint, thus making her capitulation total. She needn't have, she knew, but something compelling inside her wanted that. She knew also that it was Stern's way of forcing her to admit it to herself. The terms were now understood. "Oh yes, of course." Shirley nodded. "That sounds pretty awful. Still, it's their business." . . . private security firm with nationwide reach. She suspected, however, that all those operations did. "Why not?" the painter asked. "You'd have to feel kind of sorry for someone like that. The least you could do was make sure they got fed and looked after properly. We do get a few like that, and that's what happens to them. It's a shame, but what can anybody do?" . . . Some of the station's huge storage tanks hold diesel fuel, which is combustible but not highly explosive. "I'll have to keep that option open until we see how things shape up." Colman said. "But you're right-we've got enough men now to have a squad standing by and suited up." . . . spadefuls of raw earth cast into his eternally surprise-filled eyes, into his small mouth open in a last cry for. . . . at the shuttle base. Orders have come down from the ship to move the Chironians out and seal off the whole place. Major Thorp's there with part of A company, and he's refusing to take SD orders. We've been ordered to send two platoons. Sirocco wants Hanlon to go with them, and you to secure the block in case there's any shooting and it spreads here." . . . But Celia seemed for the moment to be on the verge of collapse from nervous exhaustion. He sighed to himself, decided answers could wait for a little longer, and settled into his seat. . . . midpoint of the hall. They stare at him, and he returns their stares. . . . in spite of how looney life could sometimes be here in Casa Geneva, and though the relentless August. "Why should they?" Chang asked. He looked across at the couple curiously. "I was wondering what they want with all that stuff. Anyone would think it's about to run out." "Then there's your answer." . . . expressions, yet his smile was broad and winning. "I put a lot of things loose, you know?" "I know." . . . discover a boy and his dog. Surprise freezes her in mid-chew, with her hand halfway to her mouth, and in. "Do you figure they might start trouble, chief?" Stanislaw asked, turning his head toward Sirocco. . . . excitable and shallow and, in general, dorky to the max. The FBI doesn't as a matter of habit open negotiations with gunplay, which means the cowboys must. "I've seen your mother go through a lot of men over the years. She's always been so . . . restless. I knew. The bulkhead door at the far end of the catwalk was open, and some tools were lying in front of an opened switchbox nearby. Colman went through the door into the pump compartment and emerged onto a railed platform part way up one side of a tall bay extending upward and below, divided into levels of girders and struts with one of the huge pumps and its attendant equipment per level. On the level below him, a group of engineers and riggers was working on one of the pumps. They had removed one of the end-casings and dismantled the bearing assembly, and were attaching slings from an overhead gantry in preparation for withdrawing the rotor. Colman leaned on the rail to watch for a few moments, nodding to himself in silent approval as he noted the slings and safety lines correctly tensioned at the right angles, the chocks wedging the rotor to avoid trapped hands, the parts laid out in order well clear of the working area, and the exposed bearing surfaces protected by padding from damage by dropped tools. He liked watching professionals..instantly render him ravenous, the boy realizes he is grinning as widely as the dog.."Girl, don't say such things!" Geneva admonished. "Someone will believe you. Subsequent investigations by explosives experts established that it had been carried in a car outward bound from Franklin. The only occupants at the time were eight Terrans returning from a late-night revel in town. They were killed instantly.."Smart . . . brains." A faraway look was coming into Anita's eyes. "Brains and trains. I like it. It's lyrical. Don't you think it's lyrical?" She smiled at Jay and winked saucily. "Hi, Jay." The pill was mixing with the drinks and getting to her already. Jay grinned but looked uncomfortable.."THE THING IS I still can't understand is what motivates these people," Colman remarked to Hanlon as they walked with Jay to Adam's house. This might be a bulletproof refuge, or the next-best thing..Colman said nothing, but instead allowed Swley to read the question in his head. Sure enough, Swley explained, "They don't make bombs or organize armies. It's too messy, and too many of the wrong people get hurt, they go for the grass roots. They start people thinking and asking questions they've never been taught how to ask before, and they'll take away the foundations piece by piece until the roof falls in." He paused and continued staring at the wall. "You're an engineer, and she runs part of a fusion complex. If you want out, you've got a place to go. That's what she's telling you.".No meanness is evident in this tall, somewhat portly man, no suspicion or calculation in his twinkling blue."You want people to be afraid of you?".First, he wanted to visit this special site, a couple miles away, where some guy named Carver or Carter."Ye-es," Bernard said slowly, nodding to himself. "He'd know the situation, and he'd probably know a safe way through the border even if some trouble breaks out." He began nodding more strongly. "And we certainly know we can trust him.". "Engineering. That's the one you're with, isn't it?".though he's admittedly hard-pressed to see anything either poetic or warriorlike about clutching a
